

RESTRICTED

TRACEY ... she could then still be divorced.

CD Yeah.

TRACEY That was one precedent, the other precedent that was set was that, in matrimonial issues where the children are all over 16 or something. The assets of the house or of the marriage are divided 50, 50, um, unless there are extenuating circumstances. Um, but she proved that because the break up of the marriage had absolutely nothing to do with her whatsoever, she, her defence, her team, her barrister, proved that she shouldn't be, um, financially worse of because of it.

CD Right, yeah.

TRACEY So she got awarded 99 percent of the assets of the marriage. Um, he then appealed and appealed and he wouldn't sign the house over. And it all got dragged backwards and forwards and backwards and forwards, until the judge actually ended up saying to him, "Do you ever shut up? I don't want to see you in my court room again." And he actually overturned the order for him to sign the paper and, um, made an order for mum's solicitor to sign the paper to have the house transferred.

CD Right.

TRACEY Because he just was being so obsinant (sic) he wouldn't, um, he would just, he was, by this time he was defending himself, you see. So, he would just appeal and appeal and appeal and go back to court, go back to court. It went to a high court in the end, I think.

CD Oh right.

TRACEY So all that ended around about 2001, 2002 something like that. And then we've all just been getting on with our lives, you know, I've got a good job, I've got a family. My sister's got her own business, you know, we've just been getting on with our lives and thinking, "Well, that's sorted, Molly's safe," which was our main concern, um, "end of." And then, obviously, there have series of events, you know, that have happened since then, starting off September the 9th 2007. Out of the blue I received an email from him, I didn't actually realise it was from him at the time, because it said, 'James Colton' and then it had, like, a blue link to click.

CD Mmm.

RESTRICTED

TRACEY And I just thought it was my brother sending me an email with a jokey video or something like you do. So I clicked on it and I was absolutely horrified, I couldn't move, I couldn't speak. I was in shock for about an hour, shaking. Mark kept saying to me, "What's the matter, what's the matter?" And I'm, like, (makes noise) and basically, you know, you know about the video, but he's set up a website about all of this. Um, basically calling us all the names under the sun, he's got all the affidavits from the divorce court all over the internet. He's got (inaudible) he even hired a private investigator in 2005 ...

12 09 30

CD Mmm hmm.

TRACEY ... I think, or 6, so that would have been five, six years after the divorce.

CD Mmm.

TRACEY He hired a private investigator to go back to Bracknell Road, to draw a plan to prove that you couldn't see the kitchen sink from the bed and therefore, I was lying.

CD Right

TRACEY Um, and it's all that sort of thing, all over, all over his internet. Um, he has been asked to stop, he has been, you know, told it's harassment, he's continuing to do it.

CD (inaudible) this point is that you have, you, you've already spoken to the police about this.

TRACEY Yes, I have.

CD The harassment over the internet, haven't you?

TRACEY Yes.

CD Um, which, um, DC Tracey Spencer has been dealing with that.

TRACEY Yes, she has, yeah.

CD Um, and she's actually spoken to him under caution, actually arrested him under caution. Spoke to him, um, about incidents of harassment on the internet. And I think she actually spoke to him May or June time this year, was it, it was or, or spoke to him about events or ...
